Part B

Elements for registration, control and protection of geographical indications

Each Party shall ensure that its system for registration, control and protection of geographical indications includes:

- (1) a register listing geographical indications protected in its territory;
- (2) an administrative process verifying that geographical indications identify a good as originating in a territory, region or locality of one of the Parties where a given quality, reputation or other characteristic of the good is essentially attributable to its geographical origin;
- (3) a requirement that a registered name corresponds to a specific product or products for which a product specification is laid down, which can only be amended by due administrative process;
- (4) control provisions applying to production;
- (5) enforcement of the protection of registered geographical indications by appropriate administrative action by the public authorities;

- (6) legal provisions providing that a registered geographical indication:
- (a) may be used by any operator marketing the agricultural product or foodstuff conforming to the corresponding specification; and
 - (b) is protected against:
 - (i) any direct or indirect commercial use of a registered geographical indication in respect of products not covered by the registration in so far as those products are comparable to the products registered under that geographical indication or in so far as using the geographical indication exploits the reputation of the protected geographical indication;
 - (ii) any misuse, imitation or evocation, even if the true origin of the product is indicated or if the protected geographical indication is translated or accompanied by an expression such as "style", "type", "method", "as produced in", "imitation" or similar;
 - (iii) any other false or misleading indication as to the provenance, origin, nature or essential qualities of the product, on the inner or outer packaging, advertising material or documents relating to the product concerned, and the packing of the product in a container likely to convey a false impression as to its origin; and
 - (iv) any other practice likely to mislead the consumer as to the true origin of the product;

- (7) a rule that protected names may not become generic;
- (8) provisions concerning the registration, which may include refusal of registration, of terms homonymous or partly homonymous with registered terms, terms customary in common language as the common name for goods and terms comprising or including the names of plant varieties and animal breeds. Such provisions shall take into account the legitimate interests of all persons concerned;
- (9) rules concerning the relationship between geographical indications and trademarks providing for a limited exception to the rights conferred under trademark law to the effect that the existence of a prior trademark shall not be a reason to prevent the registration and use of a name as a registered geographical indication, except where, by reason of the trademark's renown and the length of time it has been used, consumers would be misled by the registration and use of the geographical indication on products not covered by the trademark;
- (10) a right for any producer who is established in the geographical area and subject to the relevant control to produce the product labelled with the protected name, provided that that producer complies with the product specifications; and
- (11) an objection procedure that allows the legitimate interests of prior users of names, whether those names are protected as a form of intellectual property or not, to be taken into account.
